Ronney is an introverted young woman with a disgraceful appearance. She lives humbly in one of the poorest neighborhoods of Sheryl Valley, a town corrupted by the mafia in Southern California. With no diploma, she works hard in her parents' restaurant and provides voice-overs for children's animated movies during the weekend. In accordance with a long-standing family tradition, Ronney's twenty-fifth birthday celebration comes with a dare from her cousins: she must knock on the front door of the infamous Khan household. The Khans' reputation precedes them, rumored to be in association with the mafia. But when Ronney knocks on the door, before she has the chance to run, the Khan family matriarch, Camilia, takes an interest in Ronney. Ronney's lack of conventional beauty and disinterest in fashion draws Camilia in, leading her to offer Ronney the position of personal assistant to her eldest son, Yeraz, with a substantial salary at stake. It's an offer Ronney cannot refuse. To keep her job, Ronney's task is simple: do not fall in love with Yeraz. "Easy," she thinks. But what if destiny decides otherwise? Ugly Ronney is a romance in which the heroes enter the gallery of legendary lovers.

Dawn is a normal suburban high school senior living Saratoga Springs, New York. Her father is an expert in legends and myths and is a professor at the nearby college. She is a good looking popular girl with a boring mundane life until a new girl moves into the neighborhood. Grace is shy and looks like she stepped out of the 1940's and makes quite an impression with the kids at school. Dawn decides early on to befriend her even though she will lose her social status and takes a seat at the Nerd Table. Grace tends to be strange and keeps to herself except when around Dawn and with Dawn's help Grace blossoms. After Brandon, the captain of the football team asks Dawn out her life becomes a roller coaster of emotions and things become even more twisted after Grace's brother Max arrives and the two foster a relationship that thrusts her into a dark world where nothing is as it seems.

The Cambridge University Press published (1945-1967) in six volumes Professor Bailey's transcriptions of Saka manuscripts found in Sin Kiang and Kansu (of the ancient kingdom of Khotan). They are central to any study of Old Iranian and the Iranian dialects; and they are also important for further understanding of the religious tradition in the sacred Avesta of the Zoroastrians, and for the history of the peoples of Central Asia generally. This 1979 dictionary represents the fulfilment of a plan formed in 1934 which required first the editing and transcription of the manuscripts, and then the slow elucidation of the whole corpus of texts. It contains a linguistic analysis and translation of all the Iranian words used in the texts. It is the necessary key to the understanding of the texts, to the mastery of the language itself, and to the linking of Khotan Saka into the Indo-European linguistic tradition.

From the heart comes my innermost thoughts. Friends and family have encouraged me to share them. By reading my poems, I hope one can find peace and comfort with these words. Some will console the grieving heart; others will bring happy remembrances of birthdays and Mother's Day. Some poems are dedicated to the military and those who sacrificed their lives for our freedom. And for the animal lovers, as myself, a devotion to our furry friends. Follow me through my comical marriage up to the ultimate phase of widowhood. My intention is to touch on every aspect of life. I hope the reader will find comfort in some of my poems because they were written with love to all.

Linguists who have studied simplified varieties of a given language, such as pidgins or the language of care-givers, have tended to explain similarities in their structure by the fact that they use the same mechanisms of simplification. Bruthiaux tests this idea by looking at the structure of classified ads in American English, using a body of 800 ads from four categories: automobile sales, apartments for rent, help wanted, and personal ads. Bruthiaux's thesis is that strict, uniform constraints on space should result in uniformly simple texts, no matter which category they are in, and that any variation would be due to the particular needs of each category. To prove this he describes the linguistic structure of classified ads, and shows that they are characterized by a minimal degree of morphosyntactic elaboration. He then examines aspects of their conventions to highlight the role of pre-patterned and prefabricated segments whose collocational rigidity may force the inclusion of otherwise dispensable items. He finds that there is indeed significant variation across ad categories in terms of morphosyntactic elaboration, and concludes that this is due to a greater or lesser need to be explicit, as well as a greater or lesser anticipation of interaction. Finally, he examines the implications of these findings for the study of linguistic simplification and register variation.
